I see how to reset the VGA by pressing the Fn key to display a boot menu. But when I select recovery mode, I get a pink screen. What should I do now? I've tried to run the recovery mode with a previous kernel version, but the same thing happens. Is this an Ubuntu issue? Or an AMD issue? I have been trying to update my Ubuntu to the newest version, but it was buggy so I decided to stick with 13.04. A: You should be able to get the recovery option to work by running sudo chvt 2 and then selecting the entry from the boot menu. Once you have done that, you will have a chance to resolve the Ubuntu upgrade issue. EDIT: Beware of the difference between chvt and chvt1, though. I do not know which you need in this

The frequency of correct clinical diagnosis (no coronary risk factors, no family history of ischemic heart disease and stenocardia, no history of myocardial infarction) and incorrect clinical diagnosis (coronary risk factors, family history of ischemic heart disease and stenocardia, history of myocardial infarction) were calculated from the data of the epidemiological study of the ischemic heart disease in the Czech Republic (ECCAD) for five age groups (15-34 years, 35-64 years, 65-74 years, 75-84 years and more than 85 years) for the years 1983-1984 in the district of Starý Smolík, district of Jindřichův Hradec, district of Kralupy nad Vltavou and district of Liberec.

The frequency of incorrect clinical diagnosis is higher in district of Jindřichův Hradec and Liberec and it is decreased as the age increases. The frequency of incorrect clinical diagnosis in district of Starý Smolík and district of Kralupy nad Vltavou is much lower but it is also slightly higher in district of Jindřichův Hradec. The qualitative comparison of the collected data with the data of the "National Health Insurance Card" can serve as a basis for the assessment of the distribution of resources and the quality of medical care in the Czech Republic as well as for the improvement of the regional disparities.Q: Reading properties from a list of dictionaries I have a
