My goal is to fit a sine wave to noisy data in python using scipy.optimize.leastsq The error function I am trying to minimize is: error = 0.5 * np.sum(np.abs(diffs)) The data is just a list of [f, f] containing the frequency and amplitude. diffs = np.diff(data[:, 0], data[:, 0].min()) data = np.append(data[1:], np.array(data[:1])) data[1:] = data[1:] + data[0] The function to use with scipy.optimize.leastsq is np.cos. def cosine(theta): return np.cos(theta)

Racial differences in outcomes of patients with acute myocardial infarction (AMI) are well described. Little is known regarding differences in outcomes by race in patients with AMI who are considered high risk because of either older age or comorbidities. To assess these associations in the Reasons for Geographic and Racial Differences in Stroke Study (REGARDS), a population-based stroke study of mortality and morbidity. For a multiethnic cohort of 30,239 adults with AMI, the authors compared mortality by race with and without adjustment for the Patient Safety Indicators (PSIs), a list of patient comorbidities, and age. The study sample included 24,732 individuals and 2,207 African American, 8,020 white, and 1,053 Hispanic patients. The median age was 63 years. The mean number of PSIs was 6.2 (standard deviation 3.4) and 28% of patients had > or =6 PSIs. African Americans and Hispanics had a higher incidence of hospital-acquired PSIs, readmissions, and higher in-hospital mortality compared with whites. In patients with 6 or more PSIs, mortality was higher in African Americans and Hispanics, compared with whites (hazard ratio, 1.77 [95% CI, 1.22 to 2.60]; P=.003), even after adjustment for risk factors and comorbidities (hazard ratio, 1.59 [95% CI, 1.01 to 2.50]; P=.04). In older individuals (> or =75 yrs), there was no significant association of race with mortality, after controlling for the number of PSIs (hazard ratio, 0.99 [95% CI, 0.72 to 1.36]; P=.95). This report from the multiethnic REGARDS cohort suggests that PSIs are an important contributor to racial variation in mortality rates in individuals with AMI, particularly in individuals with multiple comorbidities.If you are looking for SEO In Pune, Best SEO Company In P
