The tables look like this: movies (ID, title,...) words (ID, word) word_counts (ID, movie, word) For example, if I give the query: SELECT ID, title FROM movies WHERE title LIKE 'a%' I will get the movie ID's I want. However, I can't find out how to group them by ID... What I mean is, if I gave the query: SELECT ID, title FROM movies WHERE title LIKE 'a%' GROUP BY ID Then, I'll only get back one ID, no matter how many movies I have with that title. Any ideas? A: You want to use GROUP BY, and one of the options is HAVING. SELECT ID, title FROM movies WHERE title LIKE 'a%' GROUP BY ID HAVING COUNT(*) > 1 Pulmonary complications in AIDS patients with disseminated cryptococcosis. A review of the clinical and radiographic findings in 12 AIDS patients with pulmonary involvement in disseminated cryptococcosis is presented. Pulmonary signs and symptoms such as a cough, dyspnea, and fever were the most common findings, however, chest radiographs were pathognomonic for the diagnosis. Pleural fluid and blood cultures confirmed the diagnosis in all patients. Many of the patients had multiple clinical, radiographic, and pathologic changes of disseminated cryptococcosis, some of which occurred after institution of antifungal therapy.
